

My Wife Thinks You're Dead

Junior Brown

A

It's good to see you baby it's been a long long while
We're both a whole lot older and seen a lot of miles

D

But things are really different now since the good ol days

A

And you've been in some trouble since we went our separate ways

E7

D

We'll have to say hello maybe some other time instead

A

Cause you're wanted by the police

E7

A

And my wife thinks you're dead

A

Somebody spread the rumor that you had lost your life?

Least that's the way I heard it and what I told my wife

D

Now here you're showing up again and talk is gettin round

A

And I can see that one of us will have to leave this town

E7

D

If you think that I want trouble then you're crazy in the head

A

Cause you're wanted by the police

E7

A

And my wife thinks you're dead

A

You never called or wrote me just up and disappeared
Nobody knew what happened, where you been for all these years?

D

Now trouble's what you're lookin like cause trouble's where you been

A

And I can see the kind of trouble you could get me in

E7

D

You better pay attention to every word I said

A

Cause you're wanted by the police

E7

A

And my wife thinks you're dead

(Instrumental using chorus tabs – A, D, A, E7 - D, A, E7 - A)

A

So goodbye to you baby I'm glad we got to talk

But I'm faithful to my wife and I don't ever break the law

D

I don't know where you're headed for but I know where you been

A

We've reminisced now let's just go our separate ways again

E7

D

Go find another ex-sweetheart to hang around instead

A

Cause you're wanted by the police

E7

A

And my wife thinks you're dead

A

E7

A

E7 A

I say, you're wanted by the police, and my wife thinks you're dead
